

Is the Story of the Daughter of Zion a good fit for my church or women's group?

One of the most powerful features of the DOZ story is that it has a gracious and Christ-centred message that resounds with women right across the theological spectrum and speaks powerfully to women at any stage in their faith journey. Our testimonies come from women from many nationalities, church backgrounds and stages of life.

What age group is the Story of the Daughter of Zion suited to?

The presentation is perfect for mixed-age women's conferences. However, Anya has adapted the presentation to university students, young mums, expat communities, those in ministry and leadership roles, and is currently working on a Young DOZ version for preteen and teen girls.

Is the presentation suitable for mixed audiences?

Yes! Please let us know a bit about your intended audience on our enquiries page.

Who is the main presenter of the Story of the Daughter of Zion?

Anya McKee is the keynote speaker at DOZ events. Anya has decades of experience in church planting and leadership, discipleship and mentoring, cross-cultural ministry and personal prayer ministry. Her latest book, Feels Like I'm Breathing, tells her own poignant story of breaking down strongholds and discovering a Gospel more glorious than she'd ever imagined. She and her husband, Jeff, are the founders of Torn Curtain Collective, a ministry that equips and empowers God's people to live as confidently, naturally and effectively in the spiritual realm as they do in the physical.

How much does it cost to host Anya and the Daughter of Zion team?

Our aim at Torn Curtain Collective is to make the DOZ Presentation available as generously as possible. The cost for the DOZ presentation is set at $25 per guest, which can be collected beforehand or paid on the day, and we recommend that churches or hosts add any additional costs (catering/venue etc) onto this.

We do ask that the host church or group cover travel and accommodation for Anya +/- the DOZ team. We would love to customise our plans to your needs and are happy to be accommodated in private homes or alongside your guests at your retreat venue.

It is the custom in most settings we present at to accept a special offering for the ongoing work of Anya McKee and the DOZ global ministry.

What are the payment terms?

We ask that travel and accommodation costs be covered in full prior to the retreat date and the per person contribution be paid within 7 days of the retreat.

What is the ideal setting for a DOZ day / retreat?

The Story of the Daughter of Zion can be held in any boutique setting, including hotel function rooms, private homes, church halls, college campuses or camps. The presentation is enhanced by gardens or grounds where attendees can stretch their legs and find some quiet space between sessions. For large gatherings, we recommend convention centres and conference venues.

Has the Story of the Daughter of Zion been adapted as a Bible College Course?

Yes! With its theological insight, richly biblical content and intrinsically pastoral application, the Story of the Daughter of Zion is perfectly suited to bible college settings. Anya is available to teach the DOZ story as a short course in pastoral theology, Christian spirituality or as an introduction to the heavenly realm.

Are other DOZ resources available?

Yes. The Daughter of Zion Study Guide is available for purchase at our events. The Story of the Daughter of Zion is also available in audio (MP3) and video (DVD/MP4) format.
